The first row should contain the title of the Task. The second row should contain a column with the name of the action which shall be reminded. The third row should contain a column with the reminder time, usually it's 3 days after the reminder was scheduled. The fourth row should contain the due date of the scheduled task. The remaining columns should be used for additional information, such as: reminders can be scheduled through the excel calendar, reminders can be send through the email, reminders can be sent directly via sms or you can use a modal reminder window (similar to Outlook/iCal) Task Types: There are different types of scheduled tasks. Choose one of the following: appointment medical appointment task periodical task (like task reminder) To access the number of items within a task use the macro [M_LIST_ITEMS()] Sample Task As you can see, you can set reminders for appointments, tasks or any kind of scheduled tasks. Extend the Sample Task - To add a reminder for a task use the [TASK_REMINDER_AUSExcelTaskReminder()] function - You can define additional properties for the reminder, for example, you can add the value of [M_ACTIVE()] to true, the time when the appointment is open, which application the reminder is run on etc. (see the macro help) - You can use the [M_ACTIVATE_TASK()] macro to turn the reminder on or off - You can use the [M_RADIO()] macro to display a radio button in a dialog for multiple options. Benefits of this macro - Use a modal reminder window (similar to Outlook/iCal) - Use the excel calendar to remind you about scheduled tasks - You can add one or more reminders to the reminder window - Change the date/time to a different date and time - The reminder will be triggered - The reminder will be send with an email, sms or popup - The reminder can be send directly via a modal window How to use this macro - Use the [M_PROCESS_TASK_SCHEDULED()] macro to get the task details - Use the [M_LIST_ITEMS()] macro to get the number 1d6a3396d6
