Olivetti PR2E plus Fast SMART PRINTER : Olivetti PR2E plus Firmware Does anyone have a file where I can download firmware for this printer. - Olivetti PR2E Matrix Printer.. Simple, nonbinding, temporary, shareable, open data? - peterferret I'm looking for a general purpose software that would allow me to quickly and easily create simple, nonbinding, temporary data and shareable applications that have open data embedded into them. I've heard about JAMSTACK.COM as a software that allows you to create'spaces' (i.e. Wikipedia) and embed code into them.I would really like to be able to use something like JAMSTACK.COM to create a Google Doc-like editing application that would save information into databases I would control when the user leaves the application, so it would be as 'clean' as possible. I would also like the ability to retrieve the data to be presented as simple text and HTML so I could create data-oriented web applications like a RSS application.Does anyone know of any similar software I could use to accomplish this or what would be a good suggestion for getting started. My first preference is Java and I'm willing to experiment with other software, but it must be free.Thanks,Peter ====== peterferret Responding to comments: Thanks to everyone that responded to this thread. I'm wondering if the use of Twitter makes everything simpler, but I'm not quite sure if people have any suggestions on how to start with Twitter. I'm definitely concerned about the overall security of a solution that allows people to remotely access the database. Anyone have any ideas? ~~~ jfarmer There's a Java example there. The RESTful OAuth API isn't too difficult to work with; it's the actual Twitter API that may be a bit tricky. ~~~ jfarmer Oh, you've been down-modded! It's not too difficult. It's the Twitter _API_ that's the trickiest part. ~~~ anigbrowl Not sure what you mean by 'not too difficult'; I was fine with it. Is there a document on Twitter 0cc13bf012

"I know that some (South Korean) students didn't like it at the beginning. But after six weeks, they've recognized that this is a very good way of promoting friendship and (North Korea) is a very good way to promote cooperation." The courses are part of a wider package of cultural and educational exchanges between the two nations. In addition to the American course, the University of Mary is beginning a similar program in North Korea with its main campus in Pyongyang and a branch in the city of Pyongsan. The start of the programs was made possible by the 100-day plan of aid announced by South Korea and the United States this summer. Both nations pledged to expand cultural exchange programs between the two
